Sixth Sunday of Easter

We are asked to love those who persecute us, to love those who hate us. And, because Christ gave this to us as his only commandment, we know two things:

1. that it is possible to attain even if difficult, and
2. that it should be at the forefront of all our life, all of the time.

We expend a great deal of energy on disliking people. We use excuses to dislike people just in the same way as Christ used excuses to forgive and love people.

Yet, just as Christ forgave us, the people who persecuted him, and calls us friends, so we are asked by Jesus to call friends those whom we don't always like. The street beggars, the people who have a different religion or a different skin colour or spoken language or culture, even those who have different ideas to ours. Much of the media – which is nowadays the shop frontage of life – tells us to seek blame. Any news story is first and foremost an exercise in blame. Yet, this is not the Christian way. Christ tells us: 'I have told you this so that my own joy may be in you and your joy be complete.'

This is our vocation, then, that our joy may be complete by loving him, by allowing him to love us through everyone around us. Let us with our whole hearts enter into Christ's single commandment to love one another, and ask the Holy Spirit who convinces us of the meaning and the value of the Christian way, to lead us to fullness in him.
